Indiana State Excise Police swear in 12 new officers

Today marks the graduation of twelve recruits that have been attending the Indiana State Excise Police Recruit School since August 13, 2007. After ten weeks of training, the recruits will be sworn in as police officers today. The probationary officers will immediately begin an eight week Field Training program. Five of the officers will be assigned to the Michigan City district, which encompasses five counties in the Northwest corner of the state, five of the officers will be assigned to the Vincennes district, which encompasses fifteen counties in the southwest corner of the state, and two of the officers will be assigned to the Seymour district, which encompasses twenty-three counties in the southeast corner of the state. Upon successful completion of the Field Training program, six of the probationary officers will attend the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy basic course. The other candidates have prior law enforcement experience and have already successfully completed the ILEA basic course.

Superintendent Alex Huskey adds, "These 12 officers are a great addition to our organization. They possess a variety of skills and talents that will enable them to provide effective and efficient law enforcement service to our communities."
